

NATOA: LEADING THE WAY IN ADVANCING LOCAL GOVERNMENT TELECOMMUNICATIONS

The National Association of Telecommunications Officers and Advisors (NATOA) is pleased to announce its continued commitment to advancing local government telecommunications. NATOA is a non-profit organization that represents local government entities and their respective telecommunications interests.

As the landscape of telecommunications continues to evolve, NATOA remains at the forefront of these changes, providing education, training, and resources. With the proliferation of broadband and the growing need for high-speed internet access, several local governments (Cities of Boston, Kansas City, San Antonio, Dallas, and La Marque) have been singled out for playing a critical role in expanding the scope of PEG modernization. NATOA recognizes the importance of this role and continues to advocate for policies and initiatives that promote the deployment of public information throughout underserved communities.

NATOA's mission is to ensure that local governments are equipped with the necessary tools to provide their constituents with affordable, reliable, and equitable access to modern telecommunications services. The organization achieves this mission through a variety of initiatives.

NATOA is proud of the work it has done to advance local government telecommunications and is committed to continuing its efforts. With its knowledgeable staff, dedicated board of directors, and engaged membership, NATOA is well-positioned to lead the way in promoting access to modern telecommunications services for all.
